ABOUT ME

I am a self-taught graphic designer and a recent graduate from a front-end development course. My creative mindset and newfound technical skills make me a versatile and motivated candidate ready to contribute effectively to design and development projects.

COVER LETTE

Dear Sir/Madam,

I read the job ad you posted with great interest and would like to apply for the opportunity.

I believe my skills and experience can be very useful to your team.

I completed my master's degree specializing in engineering at the Faculty of Technical Sciences in Novi Sad.

Over the past decade, I have been actively involved in graphic design, creating over 150 projects for domestic and international clients. This experience enhanced my creativity, accuracy, and ability to adapt to needs and goals. For the past five years, I worked as a sales representative for a foreign company, where I focused on market research, finding new customers and closing successful business deals.

This experience taught me the value of teamwork, communication and building long lasting working relationships.

Additionally, last year, I committed to learning frontend programming. I completed a course in this area, gained strong knowledge and received recommendations from my mentor. Now, I am ready to use my new skills and help create interactive and user-friendly web applications.

Also, I have German language skills at B1 level, which allows me to communicate and collaborate with international clients. I am a hard worker, always ready for new challenges and always willing to learn. I believe my technical skills, design, sales and frontend programming experience will be of great benefit to your organization. I would be very grateful if you invite me for an interview to get to know each other in more detail and discuss ways in which I can contribute to your team.

Thank you in advance for your time and consideration of my application. Best regards,

Duško Ninkov
